SUN BEAMS

By WALTER M. BARRETT

Any organization is either developed or destroyed by its leaders. That is the reason that so often a small group may have considerable more power or prestige than one with many times the membership. In reviewing the activities of the Truckee Chamber of Commerce during the administration of President C. B. White it is quite apparent why he was unanimously re-elected to that office recently. The chamber has been instrumental in many local developments, it is financially more substantial than ever before and the membership is greater than at any other time and still is growing. The chamber did well in renaming Mr. White as its leader.

Fifty-thousand dollars sounds like a lot of money and as a matter of fact it is a considerable sum, but comparatively it is insignificant. As applied to a project of development for permanency it really isn't so much. The first natural reaction to the proposal that $50,000 be raised to develop a permanent winter sport project here, will be one of awe, but a little thought may dispel this first impression. In Idaho 30 times $50,000 was expended on a development which we believe has not the possibilities offered here. It is true that if the $50,000 had to be raised solely in Truckee, it would create no little hardship and the possibilities that such a sum could be raised here are indeed remote, but willingness on the part of the local residents to give their moral support to interests which might see the possibilities here will go far toward making the proposal a reality. We might give it a trial ayway. Faith in our our own community shouldn't be hard to muster.

Fo r some time we have failed to mention our pet theory that the best and surest way of promoting Truckee is to trade at home. However, regardless of what we might say, there will still be those who can not, or do not want to see the advantages of the policy. They are willing to believe that they are doing the right thing and refuse to accept the proven fact that unless they patronize home town merchants those same merchants cannot long help the community.

Just when we were about to give up all hope of having a motion picture company here this year, a letter is received by the local motion picture association indicating quite strongly that a large group, perhaps the largest ever to come here, was making tentative plans to use the ideal scenery here for the films. There was nothing definite in the letter, but it offers hopes. And the remarkable part of it is that the company official was inspired by a photograph in one of the recent issues of the "Sierra Sportland", published in the interests of winter sports here, to select Truckee as the base of operations.

We have just learned that our good friend, James E. Nugent has disposed of the Sierra Valley News at Loyaltonto F. E. Rogers a new arrival from South Dakota. We will be sorry to lose our gool neighbor and wish him well in his future activities. At the same time we wish to extend our best wishes to Editor Rogers.

PERMANENT SNOW SPORTS PROGRAM GIVEN APPROVAL

Plan Outside Financing For Building Truckee Facilities

$50,000 TO BE REQUIRED

Completion of Ice Palace to be Feature of Big Development

Tentative plans for the establishment of permanent winter sports facilities to cost approximately $50,000, were discussed at a joint chamber of commerce and Lions club committee Monday night.

The committee went on record as unanimously favoring the program and will report back to the organizations which they represent during the next few days.

The program as outlined includes completion of the ice palace, a project held vital if winter sports are to continue to play a major part in the welfare of Truckee; installation of a ski-tow, designed to transport kiiers to the top of Pinnacle Point; replacement of the present inadequate toboggan slide, erection of suitable jumps and facilities for the holding of major contests, erection of a ski hut and replacement of worn equipment.

Several suggestions for financing the program, which will place this area in a position to offer winter sport followers the best in every phase of snow sports, were advanced and discussed and will be taken up with the sponsoring organizations.

It was de initely determine that without the financial support of outside interests, the program can not be carried out. Suggestions of bonding the district or popular subscription or even having local firms underwrite notes for loans, did not meet with approval.

One of the foremost proposals is for the development of the Long Hill region, where a natural ampitheater, ideal ski runs and natural etups for all classes of jumps exists.

It was proposed to develop and maintain a road to the site where parking areas would be provided. In this way, it was pointed out, provision would be made for a nominal charge for those attending events where admission charges were necessary.

The one paramount idea back of the meeting was that if Truckee is to continue in the winter sports business, it must be prepared to meet competition and provide those facilities which other communities are offered. Proof has been offered that this area is popular with the snow sports enthusiasts, but unless proper provision is made for their entertainment, this popularity will not long survive.

Those attending the meeting Monday night were C. B. White, president of the chamber of commerce; R. L. Gregory, president of the Lions club, C. Edmunds, manager of the winter sports, C. E. Smith, James McIver, Jr., Clarence Bowers and Walter M. Barrett.

CASH AND CARRY

With the senate's overwhelming approval, the other day, of the Pittman neutrality measure, it became certain that, when the two houses of congress agree on a final form of this "Peace Act of 1937", America will thereafter be committed by law to the principle of "cash and carry" neutrality.

It is an unprecedented step in international relations, and marks the nation's departure from a policy never previously questioned—the right of our ships and our goods and citizens to go where they please and when they please, war or no war.

"Cash and carry" means that nations at war who purchase here must come over in their own ships to get what they buy, and must pay cash on the barrel-head for it. The few dissenting senators objected that it considers nothing but isolating us from war. But they failed to convince anyone that anything else is worth considering.

There may be some complications to the "carry" part of our "cash and carry" neutrality policy, but the reason for the "cash" part is all too painfully clear. We sold to Europe on credit once before.

At the last accounting they still owe us $12,556,432,369.

That word "billions" rolls off our tongues pretty easily these days. But look at it this way. If a man stood on a river bank and tossed one dollar into the water every second of the day and night, it would take him 400 years to dispose of a sum equal to the war debt.

From the present disposition of our debtors to ignore their obligations, it looks as though Uncle Sam might well have stood on the ocean shore and chucked the whole sum into the Atlantic.

EIGHT STATES TO GO

Although on the Supreme Court issue California's legislature said "thumbs up" with its left hand and "thumbs down" with its right and thus provided ammunition for neither side in the conflict, nevertheless the importance of the matter justified the attempt to express an opinion.

Some other state legislatures, however, looked a little ridiculous with their resolutions to congress. They are the ones that have not yet ratified the Child Labor Amendment.

There they sat, father out of tune with the times and the national will than the horse and buggy itself, and made their suggestions as to what congress ought to do or ought not to do about the constitution and the Supreme Court!

Nation-wide polls have indicated that almost eighty per cent of the populace favors the Child Labor Amendment. It was passed by a two thirds majority of both houses of congress. It has been ratified by 28 states.

Surely the out-of-tune states can no longer turn deaf ears to the popular will. Surely the eight still needed will heed it soon.

There is no sound argument against the simple truth that children who should be in school are working long hours in mills and factories and getting not more than a pittance for it. And there can be no objection to the method of this constitutional change, proposed and proceeding in the manner prescribed by the founding fathers.

Anxiously, hopefully, America waits for the eight states to act.

THE PRICE OF EGGS

And now comes a series of bills at Sacramento proposing to repeal the law of supply and demand! It is said on good authority that the law of gravity is still safe, although under the stack of 4000 bills there may be a measure seeking to take care of that little matter, also.

Brace yourself for this one, lest it bowl you over. It is this:

The bills in question propose to fix, by law, the price of practically everything you eat. A state commission would command that the price of butter be so much, the price of milk of eggs so much, et cetera.

It would take about a week of intesnsive thingking to realize all the implications of this proposition. But just for a started, visualize, if you will, a state official figuring out what eggs should cost tomorrow.

Let's see, now. There's supply, or how prolifically the hens are laying; there's demand, or how much use housewives are making of eggs these days; there's the weather that effects shipments, the buying power of the dollar, the freight and storage rates and handling costs and —well, you would need a column to list all the factors entering into the price of eggs.

A price fixer might benefit one group at the expense of another. He might benefit a monopoly at the expense of the little fellow. But there is no such thing as fixing the prices by man-made laws in such a way as to benefit the whole people. You can't repeal the law or supply and demand.

Any attempt to do so would be as upsetting, almost, as the confusion that would follow if somene actually did succeed in repealing the law of gravity. And that, one imagines, would be quite confusing indeed.

Politically Speaking

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—(UP)—Political patronage developments played a major part in capitol and legislative discussion last week as a result of events centered upon E. Raymond Cato, chief of the California highway patrol, and Fred B. Wood, legislative counsel and ex-officio member of the state personnel board.

Cato setled more comfortably in his chair when Attorney General U. S. Webb ruled that he had qualified as a civil service employe and could not be removed from office just for political reasons.

Wood was the object of an intensive assembly fight when democrats moved to replace him on the personnel board with Delwin W. Smith, assembly sergeant-at-arms.

Webb's ruling regarding Cato was delivered to Assemblman William B. Hornblower, who conducted a long fight in behalf of the chief. It held that despite Motor Vehicle Director Ray Ingels' verdict that Cato was holding an exempt position, the highway patrol head had been blanketed into civil service in December, 1934.

Ingles' reply to the opinion was: "That satisfies m eperfectly."

The opinion removed Cato from the precarious position he had occupied for nearly two yars, when he never knew from one week to the next whether he would be retained or sent out to hunt for a job with some police department.

Rumors in the capitol were that the Merriam administration did not want to keep Cato, so had placed him in the "exempt" position from which he could be removed at the slightest provocation. His retention was reported to have been the result of pressure brought by friends asd organizations supporting Cato.

Before Ingels became director of the department, Cato ruled the highway patrol almost without interference. He commented on various situations and generally had his name before the public frequently.

When Ingels took charge, the gag rule was invoked and no one in the department was permitted to talk for publication without first obtaining the permission of the director.

After that, Cato was reticent to talk about anything concerning the patrol unless he had an okeh from Ingels.

Webb's opinion, unless it is contested in court, had the effect of returning Cato to the status he enjoyed while serving under the late Gov. James Rolph, Jr. He actually is chief of the patrol, rather than just a figurehead, and authorized to conduct affairs of his office without much interference from the outside.

In view of Ingels' comment that the opinion was satisfactory, some observers believed it doubtful that an attempt would be made to contest the decision; others insisted the administration would not take the setback without a fight, probably at a distant time.

Developments around Fred Wood's job on the personnel board were regarded generally as examples of democratic maneuvers to place a foot in the doorway leading to possible Bourbon victories in the 1938 election.

Should the democrats be successful in placing Smith on the personnelboard, they would have a friendly member on a board which — civil service rules to the contrary—may wield considerable weight in changing the state personnel, particularly in important positions.

Election of a democratic governor and controller might result in additional democrats landisg on the personnel board.

Because of the comparatively recent civil service service changes, the supply of political plums has been reduced drastically. Many appointive officials holding positions which previously changed complexion with each shift of administration now are settled into permanent jobs.

HIGHWAY DEATHS SHOW INCREASE FOR PAST YEAR

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—(UP)—Speed and death rode hand and hand on California's highways in 1935, claiming the greatest toll of life in the state's history.

Pleaing for safer driving and less speed, Ray Ingels, director of the state department of motor vehicles, said California's traffic death toll of 3,132 was the highest in the nation. Final tabulations showed the 1936 casualty list to exceed by 11.6 per cent that of 1935.

Personal injuries from an increased number of automobile collisions also advanced. In addition to the staggering list of fatalities, 49,326 persons were injured in 36,316 accidents. In 1931, 47,097 people were hurt in 33,729 accidents.

Ingels cited statistics of accidents on rural roads as ample evidence that although "speed of itself does not cause accidents, it does cause death."

In each six rural accidents on the rural roads, Ingels said, there was one death. The fatality rate of collisions in cities was one for each 19.

"Accidents in rural districts often occur when vehicles are traveling at great speed," he explained, "and the great force of the impact spells death when less speed would have caused little more than bent fenders."

Ingels said a recent survey by the department revealed that in 742 accident deaths, only two occured while cars involved were travelling at slow speed. Two hundred and thirty-eight were moving up to 45 miles an hour, while 501 fatal crashes involved speeds exceeding 45 miles.

"In other words," Ingels said, "two thirds of the deaths were caused by excessive speed."

BASEBALL SEASON TO OPEN SOON AS SOLONS HAVE HOPE

With the knowledge that the Solons have a pennant contending baseball club for the 1937 season, the rabid fans and old Sacramento enthusiasm has once more reached fever heat and everyone is looking forward toward the opening of the Pacific Coast league season on April 3. Reports from the spring training camp at Riverside are very encouraging and point to a successful ball club. It is an admitted fact that the Solon hurling staff is the strongest in the league. In addition stars of last year and many new winners of other high classification clubs have been added.

The outfield, from present indications, has more power than any Sacramento club for many years.

The infield is also one of the best and contains some of the league's heaviest hitters.

Going past meadows and fields the justly famous California wildflowers now transform the landscape into a veritable paradise for artists, camera fans and all lovers of beauty. California tourists are now more than ever inclined to prolong their visits.

This Week At The State Capitol

By Jack Welter
United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—(UP)—Predictions that California's 52nd legislature will adjourn before the end of May circulated freely today as opening of the third week of the spring session found lawmakers farther along the road than they have been for many sessions past.

Committees poured forth bills for floor consideration. Both houses operated at a tempo indicative of a desire to start home early. Nearing week end recess, the assembly passed 47 bills Friday while the senate approved 35.

Half a dozen developments highlighted activities of the second week

Education forces played a powerful role in the senate's action killing by a vote of 32 to 5 Senator W. P. Rich's proposed constitutional amendment which would have forced the state to "live within its income" by eliminating all fixed charges except interest and refunding. With Governor Frank F. Merriam promising a balaced budget and a $20,000,000 surplus by the end of the 1937-39 biennium, the measure would have revised the state's entire financial set-up, placing at the legislature's discretion virtually every state appropriation, including that for education.

Another of the week's outstanding developments found the senate left to determine whether a legislative pardon shall be extended to Thomas J. Mooney, convicted San Francisco Preparedness Day bomber serving a life term in San Quentin.

Declining to heed two legal opinions that the legislature does not have such pardoning power, the assembly approved, 45 to 28, Assemblyman Paul Richie's concurrent resolution to free Mooney. Observers felt certain, however, the conservative senate would kill the proposal.

Evidence of the intense interest still existing in the famous labor case was plain in the packed house gallery and main floor. Among those jamming every available seat and standing in the aisles was Mrs. Reva Mooney, wife of the one-time labor organizer. When red and green light on the assembly voting board flashed the Mooney victory, tears welled in the woman's dark eyes.

"I'm so happy I coull cry," she said. Then she did.

Assemblman Leon Donihue's announcement that he intends to introduce a bill to eliminate from civil service lists all jobholders whose salaries excee $201 a month brought a biting reply from Senator Ray J. Nielsen, Sacramento. Charging Donihue with fostering a return to "the vicious spoils system," Nielsen said he would lead senate opposition to the measure if and when it reaches the uper chamber. Donihue emphasized the civil service encourages lethargy and attacked personnel board deyay in disposing of the Oakland blind school case. His opponents pointed out his bill would provide further administrations with with 3,000 top-salaried jobs to pay off patronage obligations.

Variance between assembly and senate was expected to nullify—as in the Roosevelt judiciary reform and Mooney pardon issues—another of the assembly's actions during the week. The lower house voted to replace Legislative Counsel Fred B. Wood, republican personnel board member, with assembly's democratic sergeant at arms, Delwin W. Smith, but observers predicted confidently the senate will reverse the vote and kill the maneuver.

Principal developments of the week's activities on the social security battlefront found a movement to increase old age pensions from $35 to $50 a month apparently losing speed. Assembly social service and welfare committeemen admitted they haven't the faintest idea from where the $22,000,000 needed to finance the increase would come.

While the tideland oil issue was precipitating a sharp dispute between Finance Director Arlin E. Stockburger and Senator Culbert L. Olson, chairman of the senate's interim oil investigating committee, public utilities proponents won and lost in the legislature. The senate public utilities committee reported favorably two bills to permit municipalities to employ revenue bonds in acquiring utilities. A new move to investigate private utilities companies was blocked temporarily, however, when the assembly committee tabled two resolutions which would authorize legislative investigation of utilities and reveal names of important stockholders.

Stockburger's announcement that a Standard Oil agreement to pay $505,000 for oil the company has removed from state-owned tideland pools drew Olson's condemnation when the agreement was referred to the legislature for approval. Olson charged the proposed settlement represented only 8 or 10 per cent of the value of oil the company has pump-

BIRTH RATE INCREASES AS NEVADA COUNTY REPORTS 246 BORN DURING YEAR

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—(UP)—Race suicide won't be a problem in California if the state's birth rate continues along its 1936 trend, Dr. Walter M. Dickie, director of the state health department, revealed this week.

Dr. Dickie's annual compilation of blessed events revealed a total of 84,460 babies born during the year, representing an increase of 4,238, or approximately 5 per cent, over 1935.

Of this total, Nevada county reported 246 births in 1936 against 225 the preceding year.

Only a few mountainous and rural districts fell away from their 1935 rate, while the Japanese were the only race to produce fewer children in 1936 than during the previous year.

Last year's new crop of proud parents was predominantly of the white race. White babies numbered 68,249, or 80.8 per cent of the total, against 64,508 and 80.4 per cent in 1935.

INSECTS RAISING HAVOC WITH PINE FORESTS IN WESTERN UNITED STATES

PORTLAND, ORE., Mar. 18.—How to awaken the public to the devastation that bugs are doing in the private and national parks of western states is something that foresters are worried about, according to Clyde S. Martin, forester for the Western Pine Association.

"It is not difficult to arouse the public to the dangers of forest fires" Martin said, "but it is hard for the general run of citizens to understand that bugs are killing about eight times as much standing timber as are forest fires."

Mrs. Plettner is shown in custody of Matron Vasa Sullivan as she met the accused woman, Mrs. Love, in Los Angeles County Jail. Despite the interruption Mrs. Love was found guilty and sentenced to from seven years to life for the slaying of what she said was her secret husband.

MINING DAY WILL OCCUPY PROGRAM AT STATE EXHIBIT

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—(UP)—Increase emphasis on the part the mining industry played in the early development of California will be given in plans for this year's state fair, directors of the exposition announced here.

One day of the fair will be set aside as "Mining Day" and premiums to be awarded for placer and lode gold specimens have been increased to $500. All mineral producing counties are expected to have exhibits in competition.

Added interest in the mining division, it was explained, followed statitistical reports showing the state's minerals were valued at $67,000 000, exclusive of petroleum and natural gas in 1935, and were estimated at $84,000,000 for 1936.

POLITICALLY SPEAKING

boarl now is necessary to make changes in those positions. And there hasn't been much evidence of that recently.

Democrats obviously faced a fight in their attempt to place Smith on the uersonnel board, in view of the fact it required senate as well as an assembly approval.

The Bourbons tried to take up a resolution on the subject without reference to committee, but failed to suspend rules when they could not obtain a two-third's vote. Further difficulties were expected to be encountered on the senate side.

Democrats continued to vote together whenever a patronage problem arose. Because of this, the Smith resolution was conceded a better than even chance of passing the lower house. Republicans controled the senate sufficiently to block it there, however, if they desired.

SALARY INCREASES FOR STATE EMPLOYES SEEN IN PROPOSED BUDGET

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—(UP)—The prospects of gneral salary increases for state employes, particularly those in the lower brackets, moved closer to reality when the assembly ways and means committee indicated general state departmental budget increases to take care o pay boosts may be recommended to the legislature.

The state board of equalization requested a budget allowance of $400,000 more than proposed in the administration's budget. Of that total, $280,000 would be for the increasing salaries while the $120,000 would finance the employment of additional workers and the installation of equipment.

Dixwell Pierce, secretary of the board, reported that many employes received as low as $70 per month.
